

The Fruits of Our Foreign Policy

This season, Dr. Mark Solomon, currently Professor Emeritus in History at Simmons College in Boston will address the Forum about “The Fruits of Our Foreign Policy” on January 28, 2006. Last season he gave an enlightened and informative presentation titled, “The New Administration: What to Expect” at the Forum.

He received his Ph.D. in The History of American Civilization from Harvard University. He has served as a guest professor at Boston College, M.I.T. and Humboldt University in Berlin. He has lectured in Europe, Asia and the Carribean.

He has written a considerable number of articles that cover issues about the foreign policy of the US, globalization, war and peace, African American history, race and racism. His numerous books cover black-white relations as well as relations between blacks and communists.

He serves as national co chair on the Committees of Correspondence.